

What's hot

Dirt The hit series about a maniacally driven tabloid editor (Courteney Cox, above). Wednesdays at 9.30pm on Channel 6.

Chocolate Toblerone has a new Fruit & Nut variety. And Wispa's back, thanks to an internet campaign. Decisions, decisions.

Reflections The urban oasis dining experience at the new Dunnes on Henry Street, Dublin 1. We were knocked out.

Fabergé egg charm bracelets Fabulous. From Weir & Sons, Grafton Street and Dundrum, Dublin. Worth a lifetime's collecting.

Power suits For women who want to be taken seriously, they're back.

What's cold

Snorting vodka Prince Harry did it in an online video, to bypass the liver and get a quicker high. The practice can be fatal.

Bad apples Soft, bruised and even rotten supermarket fruit. There's no excuse when it's in season.

Public eating Yo! Sushi's Dundrum branch has fabulous food but a terrible location by the escalators. We feel self-conscious enough using chopsticks; we don't need an audience, too.

Paul McCartney Feeling sorry for himself as he goes through "divorce hell" with Heather. For goodness' sake, man, you're the one who married her.

Eircom Two weeks waiting for broadband to be repaired. No e-mail for a fortnight?

◆ E-mail your hots and colds to index@irish-times.ie. Thanks this week to Kate Holmquist